THE STORY IN VERSE

Oliver P., he worked, you see, On "legal grounds" for Hayes:— Zsck and Roscoe—Jim Illaine, too.— And they worked in darksome ways.

They seated Hayes, that "casy" man, The man they thought to govern; But, and for them, though very bland, He proved, toe, "amisbly stubborn." Hayes picked his cabinet, and sent itin;
For his "makers" not a single position
"Damn it," says Jim, "let Kellogg in,
Or this thing's bold usurpation."

Then Roscoe arose, and "sat on" Jim Blaine; He saw how the tide was running. Tilden's retired, but "Reform," 'tis plain, Is trumps for four years coming.

CRITICISMS OF MOODY.

Moody's Secret of Mastery.

La Roy Sunderland, the now aged measurait of 30 years ago, writes to the Boston Commonwealth from his home in Quincy a singular, suggestive letter about Mr. Moody's power. He says the same cores in the human mind cause in one case pathetism, in another, the so-called conversion. In these excitements, masses of mind become plastic, and are shaped by the dominant mind; and the shape frequently lasts through life. "In such cases the mind is incapacitated for discretiminating between truth and error; and least of all, are they in a condition to inderstand the mental machinery by which they have been operated upon. They readly believe in the mystical, and, if told that God or a dead man did the understand the mentri machinery by which they have been operated upon. They readily believe in the mystical, and, it told that God or a dead man did the work, they believe it." This Mr. Sunder-They readily believe in the mystical, and, if told that God or a dead man did the work, they believeit." This Mr. Sunderland knows frem his own experience in lecturing on "pathetism," as he calls the science of his own extraordinary power, and he says: "Moody is everlastingly drilling his audiences on faith, the power of which I admit, far beyond anything he has ever seen or felt. In regard to the last, the anatomy and the power of faith, I cannot justly be considered so much of an 'inide! as Mr. Moody is himself. I show him a timid body, entranced by faith in pathetism or the ceturer, when she holds a lighted candle in each hand, in a state of iasensibility opain, during a surgical operation performed upon her person. A thousand in the audience watch the candle, and the dotor's who hold her pulse all agree that her muscles and pulse never changed. Mr. Moody is prone to speak of his cases, but he never, no, never! has reported a fase of faith so demonstrative as that. And I know very well why he is uncase of faith so demonstrative as that, And I know very well why he is un-willing to allow me the opportunity to explain or to demonstrate by actual ex-periment in any meeting of his converts' what faith is, nor to give them any a derful power I have witnessed, so ver derint power I nave witnessed, so very far above anything ever seen in his revivals. And the more candid I am in my statements, the more unwilling Mr. Moody is to have his converts hear them. And that unwillingness is a peg he cannot hide, and on it many a doubt will be hung!"

A Harvest of Heresy Predicted that evangelicalism is making great gains. The tabernacle, dedicated by thousands of church-members, a majority of whom dishonestly repudiated the promises by which they obtained the promises by resound with proclamations of the worth-lessness of honor, truthfulness, justice and other mere moralities, and throngs may unite in singing the "deadliness" of hman duty; but this is the last quarter of the 19th century, and hundreds of inteligent and independent young men and ligent and independent young men and women of your own communions are rthodoxy illustrated and enforced. If puerile arguments, mediaval theology and grotesque perversions of the well-known meaning of scripture can break down liberal Christianity, the sooner it is broken used to be an end of this agitation; a reaction from this excitement; a calm review of imagined gains and ascertained bosses. Go on with the depreciation of good characters, the declaration that unbelief is worse than wickedness, the bosats of a monopoly of divine favor, the "conversions" of little children and members of infant classes by your accredited representatives. Let the

The best person to teach him to pray is his mother; there is no doubt about that. Neither Mr. Moody nor Mr. Sankey can teach a flooton boy how to pray like his own mother. Mr. Moody's inquiry meeting is no place for your boy. It is a hot-bed of spiritualism, and the Boys who attend these meetings will, I suspect, be the worst boys in the city ten year from now, unless God intervenes to save them.
